Fuel Certification Challenge Examinations

Challenge Examinations for all Gas and Oil Burner Technician Certifications may be written at the Technical Standards and Safety Authority (TSSA) 1-877-682-8772 www.tssa.org. After successful completion of the written challenge examination (minimum pass 75%), you must submit to a Practical Assessment. The Technical Standards and Safety Authority will conduct practical assessments at a location of their choice. Scheduling appointments and costs to be determined at the time of calling the TSSA.

Theoretical challenge examinations for the Oil or Gas Technician will interest those with Gas or Oil Burner Technician experience who are not certified in any category or have never possessed any Certificate of Qualification as a Gas or Oil Burner Technician. Reinstatement and higher category challenge examinations will have to be arranged and written at the TSSA. If you wish to challenge the Gas or Oil Burner Technician II exam or the Gas and Oil Burner Technician I exam you must provide proof of the following to the TSSA:

1. A valid Gas or Oil Burner Technician III or II license, depending on the exam you are challenging.
2. Documentation of the hours related to the work experience for the license that you are challenging, types of equipment, etc. Documented proof of related work experience would include letters or affidavits from employers detailing work experience related to the certification sought and the name and certificate number of the supervising certificate holder(s).

An in-depth look at popular culture (TV, ad, music, clothing, etc.) and its impact on society. We begin with a critical analysis of the media and ask who controls it, the consumers, the producers or both? We look at theorists who have examined the power structure of society such as: Adorno, Fiske, Marx and Gramsci.

The past meets the present

Hamilton's favourite morning show hosts have strong ties to Mohawk

Fans of 102.9 K-lite FM's morning show hosts Sunni Genesco and Matt Hayes tune in every weekday morning to listen to the comedic banter that has been the winning formula for the popular morning show for the last 17 years.

What those might not know is that the dynamic duo of radio has strong ties to Mohawk College. Matt, who is also well-known for his daily weather reports on CHCH TV, is a graduate of Mohawk's Broadcasting program and an Alumni of Distinction winner. Sunni, and her husband Bob, are big fans of the College's Continuing Education program.

Q. Can you tell us about your connection to Mohawk, and what role the College has played in your life, and the influence it has had on your careers?

Matt: "It certainly influenced my career. That's where I got all my training. There's a strong Hamilton connection to Mohawk, a lot of the people that I went to school with I still work with to this day. People either went into local radio like Peter Jaycock (host of Peter Jaycock Show) who I work with at the radio station, or into television. There's a ton of people at CH that went to Mohawk.

"I also had the opportunity to teach there for a few years in the 1980s and have stayed connected by emceeding the annual Alumni of Distinction awards."

Sunni: "For me it's been about people. This radio station has given many Mohawk grads jobs in their field, and not just in the broadcasting end of it. There are Mohawk grads in sales and promotions too. They all come to us with a great work ethic and a deep understanding of what their roles are and what the radio broadcasting field is all about.

"I've also taken computer and communication courses at Mohawk. And my husband, Bob, has taken cooking and language courses. It's worked great for me, and Bob loves the courses he's taken and plans to take more. That's the great thing about Mohawk, whether you're taking courses during the day or at night, is that there are courses for everybody. I don't think people realize what a gem we have there"

Q. Do you have any memorable moments from Mohawk, or a teacher there that made a difference to you as a student?

Matt: "Here's a bit of irony. We did a show called Good Morning Mohawk and I wound up doing the weather long before I ever envisioned doing the weather or being a weather person. It wasn't something I personally dreamed of doing. It was a very loosey-goosey show. They (students) used to throw snowballs at me as I was doing the report. We'd be in the studio to the wee hours of the morning working on it. I think most of the show was broadcast before any students were even up to watch it, but we had a good time, and it really prepared me for what would come.

"There was this teacher, Russell Elman, who was there for a million years. He taught media ethics and he was determined that before you left his course you knew what he wanted you to know.

"When you wrote a test if there was anything you didn't get right he'd call you at home and tell you he was going to call you back in 15 minutes and in that time you had to do the research and figure out the answers. You had to give him the answers over the phone. It didn't change your grade; he just wanted to make sure you knew the answers to the questions because to him it was important that you knew the right answers. That was the kind of teacher he was."

Sunni: "The gal who taught me computers knew I had a specific way of looking at things and she showed me how to adapt. The instructors there are great. It's a great atmosphere. Like so many things in Hamilton, Mohawk is a tool -- in a city that's challenged with unemployment -- that you can use to diversify your resume. And it's never too late to try something new."

Q. You're both very active in the community and have seen the impact that various companies and organizations have in this city. In your opinion, what kind of impact has Mohawk had on Hamilton?

Sunni: "In most workplaces in the city there are Mohawk grads. The courses that are offered at Mohawk are perfect for this area. You are able to take something and use it to get something in the community. That's the great thing about Mohawk. We have that kind of facility at our fingertips."

Matt: "Mohawk over the years has built a really good reputation as an institution that succeeds in preparing people for the working world. That's the best thing that Mohawk does for the community. It's another educational institution that puts Hamilton on the map. It also employs a lot of people. A lot of people that I went to school with are now teachers and I had the opportunity to do teaching there myself."

Q. What do you think of the changes that are taking place at Mohawk?

Sunni: Phenomenal. The observations I've made based on the students coming out of the college is that now more than ever it's more interactive. It's relevant and current. When you go to Mohawk you're going to come out of there with enough information to get into a line of work at a time when employment is difficult to access."

Matt: "It's come a long way since I've been there, but I'll tell you whenever I walk into F Wing there's still a real familiarity to being in the studio and the newsroom. There are aspects that have changed, but physically the studio is still there so when I walk in there I totally go back many years to my days at Mohawk."

It was such a great time. We were all young and all aspiring to get into the business. We used to work on different productions and we'd spend our nights and weekends there concocting all these different crazy shows and assignments. We just had a great time."
